PROPOSALS

For Publishing, by Subscription,

THE COMPLETE WORKS OF

SIR WALTER SCOTT:

With a Biography: being the first American (and only) edition which contains the Author's last additions and illustrations, arranged upon their respective pages.

A COMPLETE and uniform edition of the various productions of the great 'Minstrel of the North,' is a desideratum with the American public. No library is complete without them, and no edition extant is sufficiently compact for such a repository; while the endless number of editions, without any uniformity in size, heretofore published, besides being exceedingly cumbrous, are far too voluminous and expensive to be within the reach of the great majority of readers. The undersigned therefore announce, that they have now in press, and will issue, an edition of the Works of Sir Walter Scott, which will embrace all his Poems, Novels, Histories, Biographies, and Fugitive Compositions, as well as the Biography and Private Correspondence, now in the course of publication in England, under the superintendence of Mr. Lockhart.

1st. In Parts: each Part embracing as much matter as is contained in two volumes of the present editions of the Waverley Novels, which will be put at the unprecedented low price of THIRTY SEVEN AND A HALF CENTS.

2d. Two parts will appear each month; but should the publishers find the work to meet the patronage they anticipate, FOUR PARTS will be issued monthly.

3d. The whole will be completed in seven volumes, or forty eight parts.

The paper on which the above is now printing, has been made expressly for the purpose; the present parts may, therefore, be considered a fair specimen, in every respect, of the whole work; but, should dissatisfaction arise with any subscriber, owing to an inferior article being offered, he may discontinue at any time, and have the amount paid returned.

Note.—The publication of the first volume is deferred until the receipt of the Biography, Private Correspondence, and the New Edition of the Author's Poetical Works, with 'contemporary criticism—various readings—and correspondence with some of the most eminent persons of the time when the Poems first appeared,' now in the course of publication in England.

Volume 1 will be ornamented with an excellent Portrait of Sir Walter Scott.

DAILY PITTSBURGH GAZETTE.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, NOV. 6, 1833.

☞Our Canal.—We have seen a letter from Harrisburgh, which states that Coal had been taken from Hollidaysburgh to Philadelphia, by the Canal, and sold at a profit to the carriers.

Trial for Murder.—The trial of the three boys, Robert Haslet, Daniel Buckley, and Thomas Robinson, for the murder of Richard Beatty, on the race course, in Wilkins township, in September last, commenced this morning.—Counsel for Commonwealth—Messrs. Dallas, Rogers, and M'Clure—For Defendants, Messrs. Forward, M'Candless, and Livingston.

The River.—The Ohio is now rather too low for large steam boats, but moderate sized boats with small cargoes have continued to run. The Heroine departed this morning, conveying away the missionary family, to the Weas Indians, which was organized in this city on Monday evening. It commenced raining, this morning, and we think it probable we are about to have wet weather and high water.

Canal Boats and Rail Road Cars.—We ask the attention of the public to the extract of a letter from one of the Canal Commissioners, which we publish below. We are aware that the Society for Internal Improvements has taken the subject into consideration, but we think no harm can be done by calling the attention of the whole public to this matter—a little spurring can do no harm, but may do some good.—Pennsylvania has a noble prize before her—in contending for this she has every advantage—nature has given her advantages that cannot be neutralized by any competition: these advantages must be improved by art.—The State will soon have done all that she can be expected to do, and her sons must put their shoulders to the wheel, to be prepared to take advantage of the facilities afforded them.—The plan adopted by the Lehigh Company, is certainly a very good one for supplying the boats. The Legislature might, and no doubt would, if necessary, pass a law to render the lien on boats thus furnished more effectual and indissoluble, until the purchase money was paid.

Extract of a letter from one of the Pennsylvania Canal Commissioners, to a gentlemen in this city, dated October 31, 1833.

"Those gentlemen who are interested in the transportation of merchandise from Philadelphia westward, should endeavor to ascertain what number of Canal Boats and Rail Road Cars will be required on the water, and if there are not enough, arrangements should be made to have them for the spring business. The manner in which the Lehigh Coal Company get the principal part of their Coal taken to market, may afford you a useful hint. The Company have always a number of boats on hand, and if a man has a horse or two, and has not the means to purchase a boat, they give him one, at say $150 to $200, which he pays in instalments of $10 a trip, they retaining a lien on the boat as security. After mature examination, and full information, on the subject, I am satisfied that, by proper exertions, our canals will produce from 5 to $600,000 of Toll, next year."

THE JACQUARD LOOM.

The history of manufactures affords few parallels to the rapid and marked improvements made in the art of silk weaving in England during the last six years.

The invention by which these improvements have been principally accomplished is a loom contrived by M. Jacquard, and which, bearing his name, will probably leave a lasting record of his mechanical talents.

Scarcely ten years have elapsed since the first introduction of the machine, yet its superiority over the looms formerly used for silk weaving is so decided, that it has entirely superseded all these, and has been in no small degree instrumental in bringing that curious and beautiful art to its present state of advancement. Through its means time is importantly economised in the preliminary steps, while the most difficult part of the labor is so simplified that this branch of silk weaving is no longer, as heretofore, confined to the most skilful of the craft. It is no small proof of the enterprising and intelligent spirit of this country that, several alterations, by which this machine has been materially simplified and improved, have been already made by our working artisans, and are in advantageous operation, "while in Lyons, the city of its birth, it still remains unaltered, either in form or arrangement, from the original conception of the first ingenious inventor."

From the evidence given by Dr. Bowring before the Committee of the House of Commons, appointed to inquire into the state of the Silk Trade, we obtain the following interesting particulars of M. Jacquard, as related to Dr. Bowring by himself:—

"He was originally a manufacturer of straw hats, and it was not until the peace of Amiens that his attention was first attracted to the subject of mechanism. The communication between France and England being then open, an English newspaper fell into his hands. In this he met with a paragraph, stating that a premium would be awarded by a society in this country to any person who should weave a net by machinery. The perusal of this extract awakened his latent mechanical powers, and induced him to turn his thoughts to the discovery of the required contrivance. He succeeded, and produced a net woven by machinery of his own invention. It seems, however, that the pleasure of success was the only reward which he coveted, for as soon as accomplished he became indifferent to the work of his ingenuity—threw it aside for some time, and subsequently gave it to a friend as a matter in which he no longer took any interest. The net was by some means at length exhibited to some persons in authority, and by them sent to Paris. After a period had elapsed in which M. Jacquard declares that he had entirely forgotten his production, he was sent for by the prefect of Lyons, who asked him if he had not directed his attention to the making of nets by machinery. He did not immediately recollect the circumstance to which the prefect alluded; the net was however produced, and this recalled the fact to his mind.—The prefect rather peremptorily desired him to produce the machine by which this result had been effected. M. Jacquard asked three weeks for its completion; at the end of which time he brought his invention to the prefect, and directing him to strike some part of the machine with his foot, a knot was added to the net. The ingenious contrivance was sent to Paris, and an order was thence despatched for the arrest of the invention. Under Napoleon's arbitrary government even the desire for the diffusion of improvements was evinced in a most unconciliatory manner; and while inventions in the useful arts were sufficiently prized, no respect was paid to those persons by whom they were originated. Accordingly, M. Jacquard found himself under the keeping of a gens d'arme, by whom he was conducted to Paris, in all haste, so that he was not permitted even to go home to provide himself with the requisites for his sudden journey. When arrived at Paris he was required to produce his machine at the Conservatory of Arts, and submit it to the examination of inspectors. After this ordeal, he was introduced to Bonaparte and to Carnot, the latter of whom said to him, with a look of incredulity, "are you the man who pretends to this impossibility—who professes to tie a knot in a stretched string?" In answer to this inquiry, the machine was produced and its operation exhibited and explained.—Thus strangely was M. Jacquard's first mechanical experiment brought into notice, and patronized. He was afterwards required to examine a loom on which from twenty to thirty thousand francs had been expended, and which was employed in the production of articles for the use of Bonaparte. M. Jacquard offered to effect the same object by a simple machine, instead of the complicated one by which the work was sought to be performed—and improving on a model of Vaucanson, produced the mechanism which bears his name.

A pension of a thousand crowns was granted to him by the government as a reward for his discoveries, and he returned to Lyons, his native town. So violent, however, was the opposition made to the introduction of his loom, and so great was the enmity he excited in consequence of his invention, that three times he with the greatest difficulty escaped with his life. The Conseil des Pru d'hommes, who are appointed to watch over the Lyonese trade, broke up his machine in the public place—"the iron (to use his own expression) was sold for iron—the wood for wood, and he, its inventor, was delivered over to universal ignominy." The ignorance and prejudice which caused the silk weavers of Lyons to destroy a means of assistance to the labors, capable of being made a source of great benefit to themselves, was not dispelled till the French began to feel the effects of foreign competition in their silk manufacture. They were then forced to adopt the Jacquard loom, which led to such great improvement in their silk weaving, and this machine is now extensively employed through the whole of the silk manufacturing districts of France as well as England.—English paper.

NEW STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.

On Saturday evening, a Meeting of Gentlemen, interested in Mr. Stevens' New Plan for Propelling Steam Vessels, met at the National Gallery of Practical Science, Adelaide street, for the purpose of taking measures to form a Company, to be called "The Safety Steam Packet Company," which should use Mr. Stevens' patent paddles.—About forty or fifty Gentlemen, chiefly engaged in scientific pursuits, were present. Mr. Topliss, Secretary to the National Depository, Leicester Fields, having been called to the chair, Mr. Stevens stated to the Meeting the advantages of his paddles, which were at the time working on the piece of water in the room. He explained those principal advantages to be, the prevention of swell and of back water, the saving of power, and consequently of fuel, and added, that Dr. Birkbeck, in one of his lectures, had styled these paddles the ne plus ultra of invention; and that Capt. Durand, one of the Directors of the General Steam Navigation Company, had stated, in his evidence before the Committee of the House of Commons, appointed to inquire into Steam Boat Navigation, some two or three years back, that his patent paddles were the only ones which would ultimately be used for propulsion on rivers and canals, although he had doubts as to whether they could be made available at sea. He (Mr. Stevens) would not enter into the reasons which made him think these doubts ill founded, as all that was proposed at present was, to establish a Company for the Navigation of the river Thames. His proposal was, to give the use of his paddles to the Company without remuneration, till each shareholder had received 10 per cent., when the patentees proposed to divide with the Company the remaining profits. Each shareholder was to have the privilege of traveling in the steam vessel, first to be started, free of cost.

Several gentlemen present expressed their confidence in the success of the paddles, and Resolutions were entered into for raising a capital of 5,000*l.*, in shares of 25*l.*, for building a steam boat, to be propelled by the patent paddles, and to ply on the river Thames; and a number of shares were subscribed for on the spot.

Thanks having been voted to the Chairman, in making his acknowledgments, he stated that his favorable opinion of Mr. Stevens' paddle had been confirmed by experiments he had witnessed, made with a boat of 18 tons, the machinery of which had been worked by men, and which were decidedly successful.

The meeting then broke up, evidently confident of speedily attaining their object of bringing the patent paddles into beneficial operation.—Foreign paper.

Pope Gregory XVI.—Bishop England, of South Carolina, in a letter publishe d in the newspapers, thus describes the occupation and habits of the present Pope, whom the writer of "first impressions of Europe," in the Mirror, calls "an indolent and good old man."

His ordinary hour of rising is about 4 o'clock in the morning, at all seasons of the year. He devotes to private religious exercises, such as prayer, meditation, the celebration of the Mass, and spiritual reading, nearly three hours. At 7 o'clock, he commences his audiences of the Secretary of States, and other offices employed in the temporal governments of his states. In this laborious occupation several hours are daily consumed. He takes no breakfast; but occasionally a cup of coffee—of which beverage he is extremely fond—is brought to him as a refreshment.

When this duty is discharged by giving decisions and directions, either some of his own subjects are received upon business, or foreigners are presented—and thus some time is occupied.—His holiness has no fixed time for dinner, which is his only meal; but when the press of business subsides, he takes alone an exceedingly plain and moderate refection. The estimate of expenses for this dinner, including wines, fruit, &c. would be too high at five dollars the week. After a short rest, and some time devoted to prayer, the holy father walks for an hour or two in the gardens; on which occasions some of the principal foreigners of distinction, who have been previously presented, are upon special leave permitted to introduce him to the ladies of their family. At about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, he proceeds to his cabinet to receive the prefects or secretaries of the several congregations for ecclesiastical affairs, foreign prelates, and others wiih whom he has business relating to the church. He is generally occupied with them till after 8 o'clock; not unfrequently till 9. His evening devotions must then be attended to, previously to his retiring for the night.

The above order is indeed often interfered with, by the necessity of his presiding at congregations of cardinals and prelates upon special and important extraordinary cases of ecclesiastical business, as also of his presiding at consistories, where the whole body of cardinals assemble to deliberate on some weighty affair, relating sometimes to the government of his States, sometimes to the general concerns of the Church: he is moreover required on solemn occasions to attend at the grand ceremonies of the church, on the principal festivals; and sometimes, too, though seldom indeed, does he break from his laborious routine, in order to ride or walk a few miles into the country, to inhale a more pure air, and to unbend a mind drawn to its utmost pitch, by such close application to the most important concerns of millions for this world, and of myriads for the next. This is, indeed, but a slight indulgence for one who in his sixty ninth year is pressed upon so heavily by the concerns of time, and the concerns of eternity! Occasionally, when the weather will not permit his excursion or his walk in the garden, the father of the faithful might be found viewing, in his moments of relaxation, those glorious productions of nature and art with which the magnificent galleries of the Vatican are filled. No one surely would reproach him for such occupation of a moment thus given to restore the elasticity of his mind; unless, perhaps, we might be able to resuscitate the man who was scandalized at discovering St. John, the Evangelist, occupied with a hawk, as the companion and object of his mental relaxation.

Mr. Clay.—The Winchester Virginian is in extacies at the idea of Mr. Clay being brought forward as a candidate for the Presidency. We hope the collar press will be disappointed yet.—U. S. Telegraph.

Junius and Horne Tooke.—Dr. Johnson's remark was mentioned, that he knew no man capable of writing them but Edward Burke. Mr. Hall said, he certainly could not have written them. The style of the author is too opposite for any one to believe them identical. The talent of Junius is condensation and brevity. Burke's forte is amplification. Junius cool and deliberate—Burke impassioned and energetic. Junius is remarkable for his caustic satire—Burke for rampant and violent abuse. The diction of Burke is modern, and latinized. On the other hand, the writing of Junius affords a singular illustration of the force and excellence of the original English language. He uses no latinized words, and has composed a full and forcible style of words almost entirely of Saxon derivation. Their works could not have been written by the same hand—the man who could write as Burke did, could not disguise his style to any similarity with Junius.—How much more effective is such satire as that of Junius than that of Burke, and for an obvious reason. The subject of such vituperation as that of Burke's, has the consolation of supposing that his expressions of reproach are prompted by the tumultuous feelings of the moment, and not dictated by deliberate reflection. On the contrary, the sarcasms of Junius, from the appearance they exhibit of dispassionate examination, together with the profound acquaintance with human nature they show, carry with them a conviction of their truth. Horne Tooke was a singular example of this species of satire—his very calmness was irresistible.—Morris' Recollections of Robert Hall.

FROM THE FREDERICK (MD.) EXAMINER.

THE PUBLIC DEPOSITS.

The only ground upon which the removal of the public deposits can be justified to Congress is, that they were not so safe in the custody of the U. States Bank, as in that of the banks to which they have been transferred. Scarcely any other reason for this act can be pertinently urged—for the safety of the public funds, and their faithful application, when properly called for, to the demands of the Government, are the only important considerations, in relation to them, which it is the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury to inquire into.—Let us, then, contrast the condition of the banks from which they have been removed, with those to which they have been transferred. Two examples will be sufficient to show their relative credit. The Bank of the Metropolis, in Washington, and the Union Bank of Baltimore are the two institutions which have been favored with the public deposits. By the returns made to the Treasury Department and to the Legislature of Maryland

The Bank of the Metropolis had, in specie,	$10,974
The Union Bank had, in specie,	73,570
Making	$84,544
According to the Globe Statement, The U. States Bank at Washington has, in specie,	$69,226
Do. at Baltimore,	582,000
	$651,226
Union Bank and Bank Metropolis,	84,544
	$566,682

It will thus be seen that the whole amount of the specie capital in the favored banks in Baltimore and Washington is only $84,544, whilst the institutions from which the deposits have been removed, because they were not safe in them, have a specie capital of $651,226. Thus, according to the logic of the Globe, the deposits are safer, in a bank which has seventy three thousand dollars of specie, than in one which has five hundred and eighty two thousand dollars of that kind of funds. But, as it is well remarked by the Hagerstown Torch Light, in addition to the immense disparity in the specie capital of the banks referred to, there is another important consideration which ought not to be lost sight of. It is this: If a run should be made upon any one of the branches of the U. States Bank, it can immediately draw upon the mother bank and other branches, for specie to the amount of six millions of dollars—whereas, if the run should be made upon the bank with its ten thousand dollars of specie,—if a vindictive President should will its destruction,—what is to be the consequence? Where is it to turn for succor? Upon whom can it call for aid? It is without resources,—it must close its doors,—and the Government must go a begging for a safer depository.

The more the subject is examined the more odious will it become.

The Albany Daily Advertiser observes—"An unexampled pressure for money is felt in this city. The best of paper is refused in our banks. It was said that when the deposits were removed to the local banks, all would be well. But we have said, and we say again, that this idea is chimerical.—The local banks cannot discount beyond a certain amount without violating their charters. If they have millions on deposit, they cannot relieve the general pressure.—The United States Bank could do so."

The Legislature of Tennessee, and the Union Bank of Tennessee, have got into a controversy, which threatens to be an angry and protracted one. The circumstances are curious. As far as we can make them out, from publications in the Nashville papers, particularly the report of the Committee on Banks, they are these:

The charter of the Union Bank was granted in 1832. For the charter the Bank agreed to pay, by the terms of the act, a certain bonus, and a certain interest on the deposits of public money. The State subscribed for $500,000 of the stock, for which bonds were issued to that amount, and the seventh section of the charter of the act of incorporation appropriated the proceeds of these several sums in the following way:

"Be it enacted, that the profits which may arise from the stock owned by the State in the Union Bank of the State of Tennessee, after the bonds of the State shall have been paid, and also the bonus agreed to be paid by the Bank of the State for the privileges conferred by this charter, and also the interest which may from time to time accrue, upon the deposits of public money, by the treasurers of the State, shall be, and they are hereby appropriated to the use of Common Schools in this State."

On this clause, the President and Directors of the Bank have set up a most extraordinary claim. They refuse to pay the bonus, the interest upon deposit, or the dividends on the stock into the State Treasury, and insist that this clause makes them trustees for a sinking fund to pay the State debt contracted by those bonds, to the exclusion of the State itself! The State bonds are not payable, finally, for thirty years, and the Bank demands to have the use of all the public money, the dividends on all the public Stock, and the debt which it owes the State, to accumulate, as they allege, to provide for the security of the holders of State scrip, in case the 'Legislature might fail to raise the necessary funds.' They, therefore, tell the Legislature that they feel it their duty to 'resist' the withdrawal of these funds from the Bank.

As might be expected, the Legislature is rather restive under these imputations upon the honor and credit of the State, and efforts to supersede the functions of the Treasury by a corporation.—The report of the Committee uses freely such phrases as 'officious interference,' 'arrogant dictation,' 'rapacity,' 'fraud,' &c., and recommends a bill,—we have not seen it,—to bring the matter before the judicial tribunals.—Balt. Amer., Nov. 2.

The Indian Question is before the legislature of Tennessee. The Cherokee lands in that State form a very considerable tract of country, over which the laws of the State have not been yet extended. At the present session, a bill has been reported for giving State Courts 'cognizance of crimes and misdemeanors committed, and of all contracts made in the said territory.'

The bill expressly reserves to the Indians the unmolested enjoyment of their property, real and personal, their customs and usages, and exempts them from taxation by the State, except where admitted, according to law, to all the privileges of citizens.

It met with considerable opposition, upon the ground that the Cherokees were, in accordance with existing treaties under the constitution, a quasi independent nation, and could not rightfully be subjected to the jurisdiction of the State. After a long discussion, it was finally passed, by a vote of 24 to 15, and sent to the Senate, which body has not yet acted upon it.—Balt. Amer., Nov. 2.

The English Language, says the Boston Post, above all others spoken at this day, seems to possess the spirit of conquest, and the spell of power. What other nation has ever made any conquest where it has been spoken? It has made a conquest of every language to make one, unconquerable and incomparable of its own. It is the first—since it was invented, and the sole one since—that has spoken the language of freedom.—The genius of the sea girt Isle has wafted it to every point of the compass—every portion of the habitable globe; to every place of contest, strife, diplomacy, debate, or devotion—the camp, the desk, the court, the forum, and the temple. It has shouted the shouts of victory, on field and flood, from the "South to the Septentrion, and from the Orient to the drooping West;" it has been eloquent of human rights in the halls of legislation and justice; jealous of national honor in the cabinet of kings, it has recorded compacts and treaties and alliances, with every nation; amidst every people, it has sent up to God the supplications of its own religion from the altar of every faith, surrounded by the idols of every worship, and images of every idolatry.

It is the language in which genius and science, and patriotism have left the proudest monuments of the human intellect, or human heart; it is the language of Shakspeare and Milton, of Newton and Franklin, of Sidney and Hampden, and Washington. It is the language in which the New World was first conquered and colonized, and civilized, and re conquered; and in which we trust in God, the Old will be regenerated.

England and America, though two nations, are indeed but one people—speaking the same language, and worshiping the same God. Why should strife and bitterness, and revilings ever rise between us?—It should be the sacred duty of each to defend—not assail each other; neither can conquer—both are unconquerable; two contests have proved that no permanent conquests, either on land or deep, can be gained over each other—that the Anglo American spirit is but the Anglo Saxon, the spirit of a common ancestor, which, though cloven down by the chances of war, is yet never conquered, and surrenders only to death.

Let us henceforth cherish this proud unconquerable spirit—not to annoy ourselves or enslave others, but to plant the standard of Freedom, establish the principles of equal rights, and secure the liberty of conscience, in whatever clime the English language is spoken.

"The Wild Man Caught.—We learn that Phelps, an abandoned villain, who has committed several robberies, and murdered a citizen of Vicksburgh, has at length been secured. For some time past, he has been wandering over the country—and, although the blackness of his crimes was a matter of public notoriety, yet a consciousness of his desperate character, deterred those who saw him from attempting his capture. A few days since, Phelps entered a house in Yazoo county, and demanded his dinner; the owner of the house, an old man, about 70 years of age, being absent.—But, whilst he was glutting himself with the good things of the house, the old man entered the door, and striking the formidable intruder a most tremendous blow with the breach of his gun, felled him to the floor—and repeating his strokes, he soon stunned the robber sufficiently to bind him with a cord. Phelps is in Vicksburgh jail."

The Charleston Courier, of the 26th ult, states that three bills of murder have been found against divers United States soldiers for the murder of Owens; but that all attempts of the Sheriff to secure offenders had been frustrated by the officers of the fort.

Navigation of Lake Erie.—The Paynesville, (Ohio) Telegraph, (located near the Lake,) mentions, that for four weeks past there, has been a continual succession of gales on Lake Erie,—and that a more unfavorable season for navigation on the Lake has not been known for many years.—"None but steam boat craft have been able to move, and they only by dodging from one port to another, between the storms." Such indeed is too often the case on that boisterous inland sea. And when the improvements which are projected, by Railroads and Canals, shall be completed, and thus afford an alternative less expensive than a long course of land carriage by means of wagons, it may be assumed as a certain result that either a canal or railroad will have the preference over the Lake rout—in regard to the trade of Ohio and the farther west.—Balt. Pat.

Orange Trees.—The Orange Groves in East Florida are very productive, and take five years before they are at full growth, though three years after their taking growth from the seed or strip plant, they produce oranges, and increase yearly in fruit, until the fifth, when they are at their full height; and the only trouble and care requisite for the orange tree, is to wash the body about three times in the year, to keep it free from insects and weeds—some groves give a yearly income of from eight to twelve hundred dollars: this is independent of other productions that the land affords, as an orange grove of three hundred trees is the largest that should be on one spot; and this only occupies about five or six acres of land.

Different effects of Niagara upon different persons.

To view Niagara's Falls one day,
A priest and tailor took their way,
The parson cries, while wrapt in wonder,
And listening to a cataract's thunder—
"Lord how thy works amaze our eyes,
And fill our hearts with vast surprise!"
The tailor merely made this note—
"Lord what a place to sponge a coat!"

Portable Milk.—M. Dorchoff, the Russian chemist, who, sometime since, discovered the process of making starch into sugar, has lately made several experiments upon milk, the result of which he has arrived at is curious. He is said to have found a mode of keeping milk for use for any definite space of time. The process of preserving is this—he causes new milk to be evaporated over a slow fire, until it is reduced to powder. This powder is then put into a bottle, which is hermetically sealed. When the milk is wanted for use, it is only to dissolve some of the powder in a suitable quantity of water, and the mixture so dissolved will have all the qualities as well as taste of milk.—Ed. Agri. Jour. & New Ed. Philos. Jour.

A Sinecure.—"I am the guardian of my own honor," said one of the leading Anti reformers, in reply to some personal allusions as to the motives by which he was actuated. "I am extremely glad to hear it," was the rejoinder; "you have been long looking for a place, and have at last settled upon a sinecure."

The gross amount of duty on insurance from fire, paid by twenty eight offices in London for the year 1832, amounted to £731,730—which shows that property to the amount of not less than five hundred millions is insured by them. The utility of insurance must be very apparent to every one.—Philad. Chron.

Extracts from the Baltimore Prices Current, and Review of the Market, for the week ending Friday Evening, Nov. 1.

Coffee.—A fair business has been done this week in Rio, the sales of which amount to between 2500 and 3000 bags. Of old crop we note sales of about 800 bags to the trade at 12 1-2 cts.; a lot of 100 bags at 12 3-4 cts.; a lot of 50 bags common at 12 cts.; and 700 bags common for export, at 12 cts. The cargo of the France Jane, of the new crop, is of superior quality, and about 900 bags of it have been taken by the trade within the last two days, at 13 a 13 1-2 cents for prime greeen to strong. At auction to day, 100 bags and 96 bbls. Porto Rico green Coffee were sold at 13 cts.

Fish.—A small lot of Herrings was inspected this week, and sold on the wharf at $4 per bbl.—There has been a very lively demand for No. 3 Mackerel, of which the market has been nearly cleared, at $4 per bbl. Sales of No. 2 at $5 50. About 800 bbls. Mackerel were sold this week at these prices. The inspections of the week comprize 756 bbls. and 56 half bbls. Mackerel; 6 bbls. and 1 half bbl. Shad; and 36 bbls. Herrings.

Flour—Howard street Flour—There has been a fair demand throughout the week, and the sales from stores have been to a considerable extent, chiefly, we believe, for the eastern home markets. Several parcels were sold in the early part of the week at $5 62 1-2, but the price soon advanced a shade, and the sales have since been brisk at $5 68 3-4. Small lots, of choice brands, have been sold at $5 75, and some holders ask that price for large parcels of superfine, but as sales continue to be made to day at $5 68 3-4, we give this last rate as the fair wholesale store price. The wagon price has been uniform, including to day, at $5 50 per barrel.

Hides—The sales of the week have materially lessened the stock in market. We note sales of about 10,000 La Platas, in two parcels, for export, at 14 1-2 cts. 8 months. A parcel of 900 La Platas for city consumption was also taken at 14 1-2 cents. A parcel of 1,200 Santa Martha was sold on terms not transpired.

In the Diamond, next door to the office of The Pittsburgh Gazette.

THE features of some of these mummies are in perfect expression—the hair of the head preserved as if now living. For the direct purpose of giving visitors, of all descriptions, that wish to see the ancients themselves, and likewise the bodies that were embalmed not less than three thousand years ago, this collection was exhibited to a numerous concourse of visitors, in the city of Philadelphia, for the space of 3 months; and next in Baltimore, in the Museum, for five weeks, where contract was only made for two weeks, and continued for five weeks by request. The inhabitants of this city, it is hoped, will call, and patronize a collection worthy the attention of the curious.

The proprietor is authorized to use the names of the most eminent physicians and professors in the city of Philadelphia, and likewise that of Baltimore.

SALE OF REAL ESTATE.

THE Subscribers, Trustees of the New Philadelphia Society, at Phillipsburgh, Beaver county, Pennsylvania, offer for sale the following property, to wit:

1	tract of land	containing	330 acres
1	do	do	330
1	do	do	67
1	do	do	7
1	do	do	40
other lots, containing about			6

The above lands lie in one body, fronting about two miles upon the Ohio river—immediately opposite the mouth of Big Beaver creek, and the Beaver Division of the Pennsylvania Canal. The land is rich, and a part of it under a high state of cultivation—its location pleasant and healthy. The improvements upon the same are valuable, including the town of Phillipsburgh, late the residence of Count Leon, and the New Philadelphia Society. The town contains about 40 Dwelling Houses, now in order; some of them brick houses and two stories high. A large and spacious Hotel, a Store house, Church, a number of Shops, for mechanics, Stables, Barns, and other out houses. Also, two large new buildings, lately erected, but not yet finished, one of brick, the other of frame (the latter suitable for a manufactory) a very extensive public garden, and also fruit trees of various kinds. The property has also attached to it the right of a ferry across the Ohio, which is valuable, and becoming more so every day.

The above property is situated in the midst of a wealthy and prosperous country, distant about 28 miles below Pittsburgh, and one mile from Beaver, the seat of justice for Beaver county—and having a view for many miles up and down the Ohio, and of the country to a great distance around.

The subscribers are confident in saying that few situations could be found, presenting greater facilities to the farmer, mechanic, the manufacturer, and others—a soil rich and productive—the neighborhood abounding in coal—well timbered and watered, and, by means of the Pennsylvania Canal, and steamboat navigation, a cheap and ready conveyance to market, and a communication with other places is ensured.

The property is susceptible of divisions into farms, or for the location of new towns, or for the extension of the present one.

Should it not be sold on or before the first day of January next, it will then be offered at public sale, upon the premises, to the highest and best bidder.

It will be sold in a body, or in parcels, to suit purchasers.

Terms of sale will be reasonable.

Information can be had by enquiring of the subscribers, two of whom live in the neighborhood, and one on the premises.

PERIODICALS.

AMERICAN RAILROAD JOURNAL, and Advocate of Internal Improvements, which is designed as a repository of the accounts of the rise and progress of numerous works of Internal Improvement, in the United States particularly, and in other parts of the world generally. The work is published weekly, and forms a large octavo volume each year, of 832 pages of 3 columns each, for $3 per annum, in advance.

New York Farmer, and American Gardener's Magazine. This work is designed for the agriculturist, and will be found to contain much, both interesting and profitable, to those who cultivate the soil as a business, or merely a garden for amusement. Published in monthly parts of 32 large octavo pages, with three columns each, at $3 per annum, in advance.

Mechanics' Magazine, and Register of Improvements and Inventions. To the Mechanics of the United States—In this populous and enlightened country, almost every description of persons can obtain knowledge and amusement connected with their peculiar pursuits, through the medium of the Journal or Magazine, especially devoted to their interests. The Theologian, the Farmer, the Philosopher, the Sportsman, and even the Plough Boy, has each his Journal, where he can find a record of the passing events of the day, connected with his peculiar avocations and recreations. Hitherto, the Mechanics (who form a large and most important portion of the community) have had no Journal, to which they could turn, with the certainty of finding that information they desire, no periodical of which they could say: 'This is ours, and for us.' In the hope that the attempt to supply such a want at a price so reasonable as to be within the reach of all, will meet with your active support, the subscriber proposes to publish, on the first day of each month, a Mechanics' Magazine. It will contain a well digested selection of the most useful and interesting articles in the London Mechanics' Magazine, London Register of Arts and Sciences, Repertory of Inventions, Library of Useful Knowledge, Journal of the Franklin Institute, and other works, connected with the arts and manufactures, published in this country and in Europe, accompanied with numerous and well executed Engravings. Its pages will be open for the communications of all, and especially for those of the practical artisan, to whose interest it will be particularly devoted. The Mechanics' Magazine will contain, also, a due portion of the occurrences of the month, Scientific and Literary Reviews of Books, Anecdotes, Economical Receipts, Reports of the state of Mechanics' Institutions, and other Scientific Societies in this state and other countries. To be published monthly. Each succeeding number will contain 64 pages, handsomely printed, and stitched in a neat cover. Six numbers will form a volume, for which an index and title page will be supplied, and also a Portrait of some distinguished Mechanic, as a Frontispiece. Terms, $3 per annum, in advance.

DOCTOR ROBERT'S

☞ WELCH MEDICAMENTUM. ☜

FOR the cure of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Cholic, Fever and Ague, Dysentery, Headach, Loss of Appetite, Flatulence, Hypochondria, Hysterics, Dropsical Complaints, and Heartburn, It also prevents all Bilious disorders, and removes habitual Costiveness. Asthma, Strangury, Gravel, Rheumatism, Gout, and Impurities of the Blood.

A person who uses this Medicamentum will not require the use of the lancet, or any means of the healing art. It restores and revives the animal spirits, invigorates the system, removes nervous tremors, obtunds rheumatic and anthritic pains, and prevents their return. It cleanses the stomach of all morbid humors, which cause indigestion, acidities, headach, and lowness of spirits; cures all bilious disorders, and all cholics of the stomach and bowels, almost immediately; inspires cheerfulness; gives comfort to the dropsical; takes away palpitation of the heart; gives circulation to the blood; restores bloom to the sallow or sickly cheek, and plumpness to the meagre habit; purges without pain, and banishes all cause of fever of every kind. It acts on the stomach, that great reservoir of the human system, a diseased state of which causes all diseases. No alteration in the usual habits of life is required, but the abstaining from distilled ardent spirits.

CERTIFICATE,

From Rev. Derick Lansing, D. D., Pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church in Utica.

Utica, Jan. 6, 1830.

To Dr. Hitchcock.—Dear Sir: I have always been one of the number of those who have placed little confidence in nostrums or specifics, and for this reason, although I saw your advertisement of the Welch Medicamentum, I could not bring my mind to consent to use it. My sufferings, from indigestion, during the past summer, were so severe, as materially to affect my comfort, and my capacity for usefulness. I have reason to thank you, sir, that, on hearing of the state of my health, you kindly sent me your Medicamentum. I have taken it faithfully, and with entire success. I have not been visited with one of those turns of distress, which before were weekly periodical, since I began to take your valuable medicine. Could I receive the same relief which I have hitherto experienced, on condition of taking it for life, I should cheerfully comply with such condition. Your's, very truly, D. C. LANSING.

ANTI-DYSPEPTIC ELIXER.

ONE of the most agreeable and efficacious Medicines ever discovered for the permanent cure of those chronic states of derangement of the stomach, constituting that miserable disease called Dyspepsia.

The basis of this Elixer is vegetables, and perfectly innocent in its operation; it destroys that sour state of the stomach, the instant it is taken, and stops the morbid secretion, by giving strength to the muscular fibre of that important organ, by which means the peristaltic motion of the intestines is increased, and the costiveness obviated; a new action is given to the system, which puts an end to a train of distressing nervous sensations.

Another form of the disease in which the Elixer is admirably calculated to relieve, is the decline of fever, where the stomach will not bear the ordinary strengthening medicines indicated in such cases, it has the surprising effect of giving vigor, and restoring the natural secretions of the body, without increasing the febrile state. Not the least danger is to be apprehended from exposure to cold, while under the use of this medicine, nor will it interrupt necessary employment of the patient a single hour.

☞ A number of cases of cures performed by the Anti-Dyspeptic Elixer in the vicinity of Pittsburgh can be given.

COMPOUND SYRUP OF LIVERWORT,

A SAFE and Valuable Medicine for Coughs, Spitting of Blood, Consumption, and Liver Complaints.

Most of the medicines made use of for the above diseases are of a stimulating nature, composed generally of Resins and Balsams, in alcoholic solutions, which, although sometimes giving temporary relief, in almost every instance where they are freely used, aggravate the disease, and reduce the strength of the patient.

This article possesses superior advantages over these preparations, its action being of a tonic, invigorating and strengthening nature, thus overcoming the disease by promoting expectoration, and gradually increasing the strength of the patient, and thus, without being attended with any unpleasant effects: it also agrees with the stomach, in a cases, and is a pleasant medicine to take.

Rights to use the machine in that part of the United States, named above, will be sold by the single county or in larger districts. As it is presumed that no one will purchase without seeing the machine at work, a description of it is deemed unnecessary. Should any person, however, wish to purchase, and find it inconvenient to visit the places where it is in operation, a machine will be furnished, warranted to plane, tongue and groove, and bring to an exact width and thickness, a white pine board of 12 feet long, and of any width from 1 to 14 inches, in one minute and ten seconds, or an oak board of the same dimensions in 2 minutes and 10 seconds. Machines may be seen at work in the cities of New Orleans, Washington, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, and others at the south and east, at Wheeling, Virginia, and at the saw mill of Messrs. Irwin & Herron, in this city.

Persons desiring to purchase will have the certificates of scientific and practical men who have seen it at work, in the different places in which it has been put up, forwarded to them. They give their opinion as to the great value of the invention, state the time they have seen boards dressed by this machine, and describe the quality of the work as compared with that performed by hand labor.
